

TWO CENTS—THE DAY BOOK—TWO CENTS

MOTHER JONES AND GERTRUDE BARNUM TO HELP STRIKERS

Two new figures bobbed up into the ladies' garment makers' strike yesterday. They are Mother Jones and Gertrude Barnum, arbitrator of labor disputes.

Mother Jones, who has been in jail dozens of times during the 83 years of her stormy life, was served with a notice signed by Judge Jesse Baldwin, which threatened her with a prison sentence if she interfered in favor of the workers.

Miss Barnum, in a letter to the attorneys for the garment manufacturers, said that the workers felt that the cards were stacked against them and they could not understand the use of the injunction.

Attorney Clarence Darrow, representing the striking garment workers, will appear in Judge Baldwin's court this afternoon and ask that jurist to modify his recent drastic injunction restraining the strikers from picketing. Four hundred strikers, who have been thrown into jail by the police for alleged violation of the injunction, will appear in court with Darrow.

Harry Reutlinger, a reporter for the Chicago American, has been summoned to appear in Baldwin's court to explain a story that appeared in the Hearst sheet last Friday. In the story Reutlinger quoted Sam Sideman, vice pres. of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, as instructing the strikers to picket regardless of Judge Baldwin.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Free class dealing with production and distribution of wealth held tomorrow night, 8 p. m., by Prof. Alfred Westrup at 4117 Vincennes av.

Red Oak, Iowa.—Horace E. Deemer, justice Iowa supreme court, dead. Nervous breakdown.

BALD-HEADED ROW!

By Jim Manes

I think that I've discovered all
About "Bald-headed row!"—
The line of men who sit in front
At every burlesque show.
The management's to blame for this,
It's quite a clever stunt.
In case of fire, of course, they want
Cool-headed folks in front.

P. S.—So, you see, the idea is not what you thought, after all.

MARJORIE DELBRIDGE MADE JUVENILE COURT WARD

Judge Bowles today cut off all connecting links between Marjorie Delbridge and her negro "mammy," Mrs. Cammilla Jackson, when he placed the girl legally in the custody of the juvenile court. She was turned over to Mrs. Catherine Shannon, head of the home-finding bureau of the court. Until she reaches the legal age Marjorie will be a ward of the court.

Chas. S. McNutt, an attorney, appeared in court to protect the interests of his clients, Jas. G. Cotter and Chester De Armond, who were named by Marjorie as being instrumental in staging her successful flight from the home of Mrs. Louis Brock. He attacked the unconstitutionality of the action of Asst State's Att'y Hogan in taking the girl from Detroit in the manner he did. Judge Bowles expressed an opinion that any irregularity in the case was confined to Marjorie's escape from Chicago.

Paris.—American freighter Orleans arrived at Gironde safely.

WEATHER FORECAST

Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday; cold wave tonight with lowest temperature about 15; fresh north to northwest winds. Temperatures Sunday: High, 47; low, 43.